2005 honda civic w/ 1.6 3dr Acura value.SYS: 5" TiV is installed, 100k on the clock. SRS-4 upgraded to sport mpg. Im a little apprehensive about the weight. Ive always been a sucker for a lighter car. I can live with the extra weight but as a daily driver, I'd like to shed a few lbs. especially since I do alot of urban driving. Anybody have any input or suggestions? HUH! Click to expand... I hear ya. At 16k it should be livable as a daily if you're willing to do all the work. Drop the weight, get rid of some accessories, go with Corbeau seats, and have a killer sound system. Thanks in advance. Considering the weight of the steel body and the weight of the suspension, you're probably not going to see a significant difference in the weight of your current car. All in all, unless you spend all of your time in the city, the weight shouldn't be too much of a concern. As far as cabin noise, you're better off leaving the stock speakers in the cabin, and upgrading to a better set of speakers with a factory installed sub. If you're not inclined to spend the money, a solid set of sound deadening material will keep the sound down from the door speakers. 2005
