The first trailer introduces the new gameplay from a player perspective and a hint at the development of the game. 22 Player Motion Capture (MP-CH) Exclusive to FIFA 22, Player Motion Capture captures the movements of 22 players during a real-life match and uses the data to power the on-pitch gameplay. By capturing the movement of the real players during a match, players can now be incorporated in the game in more realistic ways. Players will be able to use full-body-weight, one-handed passing, goalkeepers will now be able to use a traditional off-foot kicking motion, and more. The new technology brings the FIFA player experience one step closer to real-life football. Real-Player Control and Control Depth Players will now be able to control the ball with the motion-capture data from their own body. Selecting a player on the touchline will now allow you to control that player's passing motions and dribbling, including one- and two-handed passes. Players will also control pass types and recipient players that are closer to real-life situations, such as just controlling short and long passes without looking down at your controller. Additionally, players will be able to vary the timing of their first-touch passes to add more subtlety to their control. Movements will be able to also be controlled by pressing the directional buttons. In-Game Foot Controls To improve gameplay, gamers can also now control the ball by pressing the buttons on the foot they use to kick the ball. In-game challenges are now able to be navigated using head and motion controls as well. The new Player Motion Capture technology brings more realism to the ball-control gameplay and will be exclusive to FIFA 22, a full game launch-exclusive title. More information can be found here. This invention relates to a microwave oven, and more particularly to an improved microwave oven which is provided with light barrier detecting means for detecting light of predetermined intensity. When conventional microwave ovens are used under varying conditions, unevenness of the cooking result occurs. In particular, the cooking is not effected when the oven is used in an improper operating condition. This is due to the fact that the microwave oven radiates electromagnetic waves of a high frequency of 915 MHz with microwaves of a power of 50 W and a frequency of 2.45 GHz with microwaves of a power of 170 W. If the microwave oven radiates microwaves of 170 W, the heating capability is low, and this is often called the condition where the oven has a short cooking time. In general, when the microwave oven is used in this condition, the cooking conditions are varied due to heat in the heater, including electric heat, the heat generated in the cooking chamber, the thermal conduction from the surface of the cooking chamber, and the heat produced due to difference in physical properties of the food material between the inside and the outside of the cooking chamber. Thus, the heating performance of the oven is not constant. When the oven is used in this condition, the heating time of the food material is variable. The cooking results are also varied due to heating conditions when the food material is placed in the cooking chamber

What's new:

- FIFA UFTA (UPDATE: DIOR in FIFA)

- New Goalkeeper AI

The goalkeeper can hold or drop off the football and keep the ball out of the back of the net with the patented Dior D-Force technology. He's also able to anticipate opponents' movements and unpredictably rise to the ball, with the ability to parry and then back off before launching a powerful counter-attack.

- Additional Kicks

Six more kicks are now controllable: Pop, Pin, Drag, CyberKick, Lift and Reverse Stab.

- Advanced Kick Pass

An advanced feature for passing tailored to each goalkeeper's style. If the goalkeeper gets the pass wrong, he will have to make a reaction save. It's now more realistic. Ball can't be controlled by the new controller. For this reason, the pass must be controlled from an animation pass game controller.

- Ball Control

Ball control allows the goalkeeper to line up a shot or control the attacker to dodge and weave towards the goal. Assistant can assist goalkeeper in execution of these controls.
