Please join my private chat system and you will get much more high quality support not just what i can post on the comments I am having problem which i cant solve. I searched everywhere and tried several solutions Dns Manager For Whmcs Nulled 5.2.5 funny gewerbli " " Software and utilities. I had an oops in the fios that caused 2 dns entries in windows dns server. I ran a windows script to remove it, but Now, every time I resolve my dns server it sets an entry in my windows dns server, despite multiple efforts of re-setting and dns forwarding to the dns server (which is configured to be a local resolver on my server). I have no idea where the error is or how to fix it. Any help would be much appreciated. The server is an anonymous UNIX box running zedwinesurfer-spdnsd v1.4.1-BETA and bind9 v9.3.5. I'm trying to set up a reverse lookup zone for domain example.com and the code is as follows: windows systems C: amed>set start=10.0.0.1 The problem is, when I do this, it sets the dns entry to the second server in the list C: amed>set start=10.0.0.2 however if i do the following it works fine C: amed>set start=default so i'm pretty sure the problem is the DNS resolution for this I have tried all sorts of forwarding (tried it with the servers IP address, and the IPv6 addresses) but it always gets the servers dns lookup, or the second server in the list Before i try to set my dns server as a forwarder C: amed>set forwarders This is the contents of my named.conf.local file zone "example.com" { authority 4.2.2.2; forwarders { # primary server 192.168.10.1; # secondary servers 192.168.10.2; }; # forward subdomains to specific servers forward first.example.com { 192.168.10.1; }; forward second.example.com { 192.

Cinder is a Druid initiated through the magical art of transmutation by Gawain. He is the Green Knight of the Arthurian legend and is the older brother of the Green Knight of the French legend, the Knight of the Cart. Yogis Cinder is a magus who by his art can transform his body into numerous forms; the best known of which is his green-painted Knight, so conspicuous in this episode that the Green Knight, even without the help of his brother, could be mistaken for Cinder at first sight. He is a sort of yogi, a magus, a shaman and a sorcerer with magical powers. In the "Yogis Cinder" subsection below, you'll find other things of interest. Composition of a Green Knight "And so the knight that was Green clothed him in mail that was green, rich and thick, for though he was of goodly fashion it was all manner of rich cloth, and his skin was most ruddy, and his head was decked with a turban of green, wherein was no worldly-minded fool, but a wise man that was learned and studied. And his head he clothed with a green kep, hanging down behind his back, that came unto his knee; and this knight was the knight of the world." (Wace, p. 29) "And as he went on his way he was wont to think upon various matters, for in the soul of him there was no counsel but only care that would shed tears. For he was passing a morsel, but thought in thought in his heart that he was passing one
