The data means the economy is currently only just meeting the Bank of Japan's growth target of 2 per cent plus for the year, a feat it has not achieved since before the March 2011 earthquake and nuclear crisis. Ahead of release of the second quarter data, government officials hinted that the BoJ will need to ease policy further to achieve the target. The government forecast growth of 3.0 per cent for the full year, with a range of 2.8 per cent to 3.4 per cent. The median estimate of 26 economists surveyed by Bloomberg was 3.1 per cent. The government's statistics agency said there was a decrease in the yen's value, partly as a result of foreign investors buying assets abroad that were more likely to increase in price when the currency moves. It also benefited from a surplus in the first quarter, while farm income and the value of consumption based on household data surged. A stronger yen is the "major threat" to the economy, Deputy Finance Minister Akihiro Ohira said after the data release. "If the trend in the yen continues, the economy will be weaker." An example is the physician who violated the Hippocratic Oath by injecting his friend with cancer with the hepatitis B virus in an attempt to kill his cancer cells. Here are just a few of the things we will discuss: It's not the cancer that kills you, it's the health care. Most people believe their health is in the hands of the gods, but it's the exact opposite. It's our responsibility to make sure we are healthy. I'm going to show you how it's possible to drastically reduce your chances of getting cancer while increasing your lifespan considerably. I'll show you how you can save your life, even if you've already been diagnosed. How to stop cancer treatment at the hospital. Most people are unaware that modern medicine can, and does, treat most diseases. They simply look for the fastest or most advanced treatment. But do you know what really causes cancer? Here is a quick history lesson: Tobacco and caffeine have both been proven to cause cancer in animal studies and in people. X-rays and electromagnetic radiation cause cancer. Mercury and uranium are both dangerous and cancer-causing. Drug company propaganda and political pressure to practice and promote "chemical poisoning" as the #1 killer of Americans.
